north pole. The surviving members of the expedition have arrived at Archangel.

The winters of 1912 and 1913 were spent on newly discovered territory. Lieut. Sedoff went to Franz Josef Land, where his start to the pole, with two sailors, was made. He was taken iil on the way and died.

An expedition for the relief of Lieut. Sedoff and his party was sent out by the Russian Government early this year and it is supposed that the expedition rescued those who were left of Sedoff's party. He had planned to leave most of his party at Franz Josef Land and to make the polar dash with only two companions. Those left in winter quarters were to carry on the scientific work of the expedition. The first subscription for the expedition was given by Emperor Nicholas.
